Our Expertise

With significant investments in energy infrastructure across all levels of government and the private sector, along with a rapidly evolving risk landscape for utilities, public and private entities are uniquely positioned to navigate this dynamic environment. By prioritizing infrastructure programs, risk mitigation planning, and crisis preparedness activities, organizations can stay ahead of emerging challenges.

At Hagerty, we leverage extensive experience in utility disaster preparedness to support clients nationwide in strengthening the resilience and preparedness of their assets, operations, and people.

Whether your organization is an investor-owned utility, state agency, or membership organization, our team can help you reimagine your crisis response strategies, conduct impactful training and exercises, and identify, secure, and manage federal funding opportunities.

Our Clients

Planning, Training, and Exercises

Hagerty helps investor-owned utilities prepare for emergencies by delivering planning initiatives, training programs, and exercise series, ensuring they are prepared for any critical event.

Energy Security and Risk Mitigation Planning

In collaboration with state energy offices across the country, Hagerty helps create and exercise State Energy Security Plans (SESPs) that promote resilient energy futures for states nationwide.

Regional and National Exercises

Hagerty has supported the North American Electric Reliability Corporation (NERC) in developing GridEx VI and VII and partnered with utility and government entities across the nation to enhance emergency response capabilities.

Federal Funds Management

Through strategic partnerships with state governments and public utilities, Hagerty assesses energy resilience priorities, designs federally funded energy resilience programs, and delivers expertise to help navigate and leverage federal funding opportunities for energy resilience initiatives.
